altodigital
your office technology partner

Altodigital can assist in reducing costs and improving efficiency through device consolidation and proactive device management, but that's just the start of the story.

We are one of the UK's most experienced and respected print and document technology providers. Having been awarded onto Lots 1 and 3 of the National Education Framework, we have developed a specialist educational-based facility that will meet all the needs of schools, academies, colleges and universities. Through our detailed audits, analysis and recommendations we will ensure you have a clear understanding of the true cost of ownership of your print infrastructure and all associated software and processes.

With your own dedicated support team you are assured of the ultimate in personal service, together with advanced technology that delivers impressive print standards, while at the same time helping you lower costs, reduce energy consumption and minimise carbon emissions.

Clever doesn't always have to mean complex, because very often simplicity works out best.

That's the keystone supporting Altodigital's impressive print and document solutions for education establishments. After all, your objectives are probably straightforward enough: an efficient, well managed, stress-free system that is easy to operate and maintain; is available to students and staff alike and which can include a proven cost recovery programme. We provide solutions that ultimately deliver efficient print services, enabling you to focus on the development of your students.

Solutions focused on helping teachers and students

Altodigital's passion is centred on helping our customers become more productive. Our goal is to implement solutions which improve efficiency and remove some of the laboursome and unnecessary processes that frustrate your admin and teaching staff on a daily basis, such as document archiving. The benefits of electronically archiving hard copy documents are considerable. It no longer makes sense to store excessive amounts of paper as it can use up valuable space, prove to be expensive and waste the time of staff. It can also make data difficult to retrieve and lead to serious security breaches. Digital archiving and storage solutions are the smarter option, and a must for education establishments. Altodigital's Managed Document Solutions address document security issues, improves accessibility and data collaboration, with complete integration into Student MIS systems such as SIMS.

Preparing your students for the future

Technology changes constantly and with that comes a range of opportunities for students to learn and grow with the new developments, preparing them for a future in the workplace. Partnering with a company like Altodigital ensures that you always have access to the latest advancements in technology. Our range of hardware and software includes solutions around 3D scanning and printing - guaranteed to bring Technology lessons to life!

A Completely Managed Service

We will work with you to understand your requirements, and manage the solutions we implement throughout their lifetime, leaving your staff with extra time and resources to spend on enabling the education of your students.
